

Strength Of Ninety-Fourth Is Now At The 800 Mark

At the end of January 1916, the 94th Overseas New Ontario Battalion had reached the number of 800 men. This included all ranks and all recruitment districts. A little over 200 more enlistments was required to for the battalion to become full strength.

Speculation began as to where the battalion would train during the summer months. Many thought the battalion would be staying in the Lakehead and train at Gresley Park while others thought that the battalion would leave for Camp Sewell in Manitoba
