Soldiers Play
Their First Game

In January 1917, the Thunder Bay Hockey League began a new season with three teams competing for the championship and the right to play in the Allan Cup. Again the Fort William and Port Arthur Hockey Clubs would compete, but this year would see a team comprised of soldiers from the 141st Bull Moose Battalion making up the last team. While the 94th Overseas New Ontario Battalion played valiantly in the previous season but did not win many games, the 141st Battalion hockey team would shock citizens of the Lakehead with their dominate play and ability on the ice. A much more detailed description of the 1917 Thunder Bay Hockey League season will be on the Thunder Bay Public Library website very soon.
